South Carolina Appleseed along with AARP South Carolina, The S.C. Small Business Chamber of Commerce and South Carolina Fair Share are proud to announce the implementation of four National Health Care Debate Forums in South Carolina.

With more than 700,000 uninsured South Carolinians including 100,000 children, it is time to fix our country's health care system. While meetings of business, provider and consumer groups are taking place in Washington D.C., these forums are meant to provide and opportunity for South Carolinians who face the realities of being either uninsured or underinsured to learn about the opportunities that these efforts will have on securing them safe, quality, and affordable health care. With participation and information provided by our Congressional delegation we will learn what the efforts in Washington will mean to everyday South Carolinians. The forums will also give South Carolina's citizens the opportunity to share their experiences and provide input on what health care reform will mean to them.
